“By all standards, Evolve IP delivers a world-class, highly-scalable UCaaS solution for businesses around the globe. They are a market leader that organizations evaluating new phone systems and contact centers should include on any short list of providers,” said Elka Popova, Vice President and Senior Fellow for Frost and Sullivan. “The company has the ability to design and host the highly-customized, compliance-focused solutions that are prevalent in today's midmarket and enterprise environments.”

Popova continued, “Where Evolve IP truly stands out compared to other UCaaS providers is their unique capability to develop and deploy integration strategies between their IP phone systems and collaboration tools and other cloud services such as DaaS, CCaaS, IAM, and IaaS. This ability drives major cost and time efficiencies for businesses and enables a better user experience for both associates and business customers.”

“We are incredibly pleased to be recognized as a leader in the UCaaS market by Frost and Sullivan; one of the world's top analyst firms,” said Scott Kinka. “Their approach to thorough research and deep dives into technology provides business leaders and IT professionals with the confidence to evaluate not only the vendors that are right for their business, but the platforms and features that are necessary for their continued growth.”
